It's not fun in the traditional sense, it's not attractive, and its control is really picky. However, this game is absolutely hilarious. Every time you realize it's absolute funny you're screaming on your phone to play a stupid little game, you laugh. That's what makes this game worth playing. I'm probably wont to keep it on my phone because it's just not fun to play, but every time I'm super bored and need a funny little pick-me up, I'll be reset to it. A great example is Scream Go Hero, a platform for video games that the user needs to control using voice commands. If you whisper, only You're going to dance. If you shout, you shout, The huge jump behind this game idea is as simple as your design. It introduces us to a ninja-like character that we will be able to control with our voice. As? Well, very easy: we have to shout at him so that he jumps every time he gets close to the edge of the gap. If we scream out loud, it will be a giant leap, but if we don't force our voice so the jump won't be so big or far away. For us to play properly, the best we can do is calibrate the microphone on our phone before you start playing. The game comes along with two game modes, one with levels and the other is endless. During the game, we can pick up various items to increase our score and try the top world leaders. Use your voice to move and jump between platforms. Soft voice to dance, scream to dance. Beware! Don't bother your neighbor! Neighbor!
